

Perdomo Cigars: Heritage and Craftsmanship That Define Excellence

A Legacy Born in Cuba, Perfected in Nicaragua

The Perdomo story begins in Cuba with Silvio Perdomo, continued through Nick Perdomo Sr., and flourished with Nick Perdomo Jr., who founded Tabacalera Perdomo in the 1990s. What started as a small operation grew into one of the most respected vertically integrated cigar companies in the world.

Uncompromising Quality from Seed to Box

Premium Seeds

Perdomo grows its own tobacco in Nicaragua's three richest regions—Estelí, Condega, and Jalapa—each producing distinctive flavors and textures.

Aging Process

Tobacco leaves are aged for more than six years, with some wrappers being bourbon-barrel aged to enhance complexity and richness.

Final Product

This careful process results in a smooth, balanced, and flavorful smoke that continues to impress even the most seasoned aficionados.

Nicaragua's Tobacco Regions

Estelí

Known for producing strong, full-bodied tobacco with rich earthy flavors that form the backbone of many Perdomo blends.

Condega

Produces medium-bodied tobacco with excellent balance, adding complexity and nuance to Perdomo cigars.

Jalapa

Creates smooth, aromatic tobacco with subtle sweetness, perfect for wrappers and adding refinement to blends.

Integrity, Family, and Innovation

More than a cigar company, Perdomo represents a family that never compromises its values. Their factory in Estelí is a model of efficiency, cleanliness, and innovation—proof that old-world craftsmanship can coexist with modern precision.

Nick Perdomo Jr. is not just a businessman; he is a steward of tradition. His hands-on leadership has earned him deep respect throughout the industry.
